

What's a HUBZone Business?

Founded in 1997, SBA's HUBZone program seeks to uplift disadvantaged and economically distressed communities by providing government contracting assistance to qualified small businesses in the designated area. If the majority of the business's staff live in a HUBZone and the company bases its principal office there, they can compete for specially established small business set-asides after a brief certification process.

Essentially, we're just like regular businesses— but with the added advantage of building back needful neighborhoods and districts.

Why should I work with a HUBZone Business?

Community Impact

HUBZone companies exist to improve the districts where they reside. So when you partner with one, you can rest easy knowing your hard-earned capital now has the power to make some genuine and impactful changes. Since HUBZone businesses base themselves in areas with more people than available jobs, their growth actively fights unemployment, all while giving citizens better job prospects.

With better job prospects, residents now have the potential to stimulate economic development even further by turning right back around and putting their dollars right back into their neighborhoods.

Supporting Small Business

Each HUBZone enterprise also qualifies as an SBA-Certified small business. This designation means that when you conduct business with these companies, your capital goes directly to uplifting the neighborhood and the lives of those that reside there.

According to Forbes, small businesses donate 250% more than large businesses to local nonprofits and community causes like youth organizations, service groups, and more. So when you choose to spend your money locally, that means you're helping needful people get back on their feet, a parent pay for piano lessons, or a family finally buy a house.

Dealing with a small business means you often have the pleasure of directly interacting with the people who create or execute a product or service. This straightforward, intimate nature allows the company to handle customer concerns and provide assistance more quickly, efficiently and carefully than a larger business would. Rather than just making a sale, their specialized qualities allow them to curate a buying experience complete with consistent quality assurance and detailed levels of personalization.

You can also guarantee that your satisfaction matters to a small business owner, because each and every purchase supports their dream, maintains their livelihood, and stokes their passion. The owners understand that their provisions, whatever they may be, are a reflection of themselves, and take pride in putting their best foot forward.

Developing Young Professionals

Since our company first began, we've strived to take our knowledge and experience and empower others to achieve their personal and professional goals. We're proud to be able to say that we've had several classes of young, fresh, team members that we've nurtured, challenged, and coached as they rose through our ranks.

When we received our HUBZone certification back in 2020, we took it as an opportunity to take our efforts to a whole new level. We launched a brand-new office location and staffed the pioneering venture with a crew of junior personnel that we believed had immense potential. After just two years with our company, two of those original have moved into leadership positions, with several more receiving significant promotions.

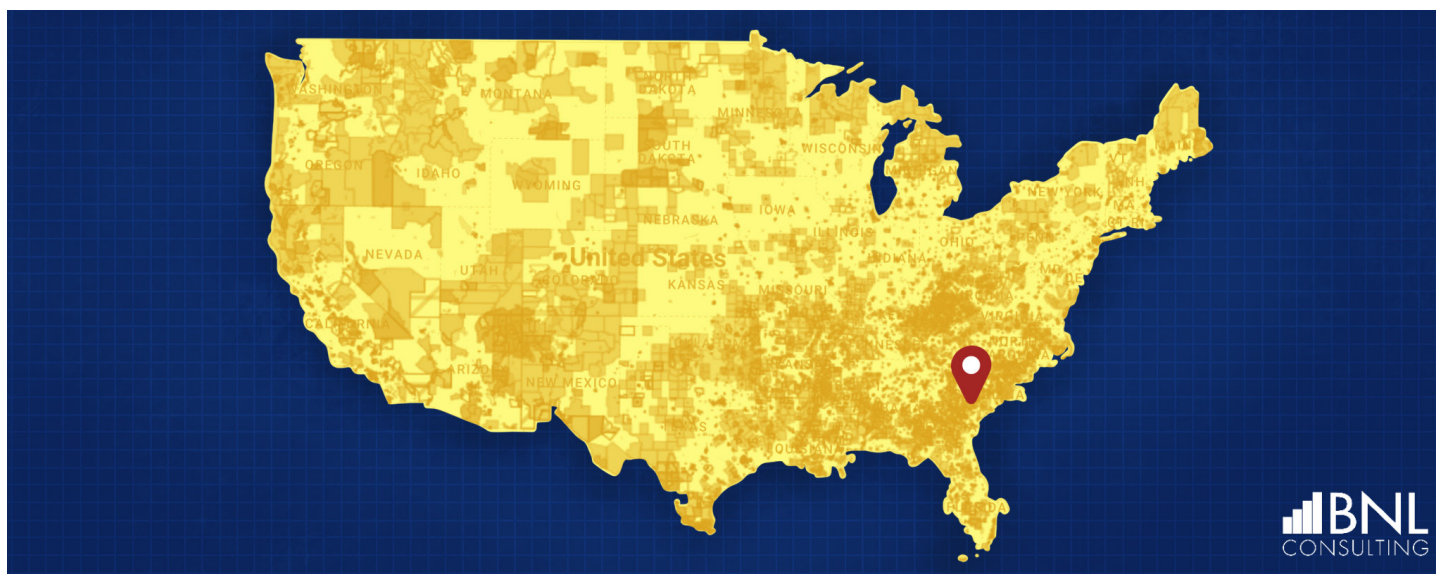

Our HUBZone Contracts

The Centers For Medicare and Medicaid Service's Data Analytics Supporting Healthcare (DASH) BPA

For the duration of this five-year agreement, we'll provide the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services with a streamlined process to support their quality related initiatives like agile delivery services, IT management and governance, business process analysis, and more.

For us, pursuing a HUBZone certification felt like a no-brainer. We can't think of a better way to support our core values of community building, mentoring, and supporting small business.
